

AFO 256 - Printing modified supplier records

256.1 Printing modified supplier records

AFO 256 enables you to print modified supplier records (for example so that you can check them). Supplier records are automatically put into a temporary file when:

- A record is input for the first time (new suppliers).
- Whenever the print option is used for a supplier record for whatever reason.

If you select this AFO an information screen will be displayed showing how many records there are in the temporary file:

If you decide to print, the system will immediately switch to the standard output procedure. After printing a selection screen will be displayed on which you can indicate whether the file(s) should be deleted (OK) or saved (Cancel):

If there are no records in the temporary file the following information screen will be displayed:
